Restoring our World through a Sacred Harmony to the Earth and between each other

A touring exhibition with Northern Plains contemporary artists

“Upon suffering beyond suffering: [We] shall rise again and it shall be a blessing for a sick world. A world filled with broken promises, selfishness, and separations. A world longing for light again. I see a time of Seven Generations when all the colors of mankind will gather under the Sacred Tree of Life and the whole Earth will become one circle again. In that day, there will be those among the Lakota who will carry knowledge and understanding of unity among all living things and the young white ones will come to those of my people and ask for this wisdom. I salute the light within your eyes where the whole Universe dwells. For when you are at that center within you, and I am that place within me, we shall be one.”

- Crazy Horse, Oglala Sioux Chief

“The earth is our mother. What befalls the earth befalls all the [children] of the earth. This we know: the earth does not belong to [humanity], [humanity] belongs to the earth. All things are connected... We do not weave the web of life; we are merely strands in it. Whatever we do to the web, we do to ourselves. The earth is precious to God and to harm the earth is to heap contempt on its Creator.”

- Chief Seattle, Suquamish and Duwamish Chief

Introduction and Strategic Need

GROUND^ED is an artistic exploration curated by ArtSpirit, the arts initiative of Episcopal Church in Wyoming, to inspire our imaginations about our need of being "grounded" in our relationship with all of creation: the earth and its wildlife, each other and ourselves. At this moment in time, it is critical for both our own health and the survival of our planet, that we acknowledge and honor our intricate connection to the earth as our sustainer, to the wisdom of our ancestors, and to humanity's need of each other. Our world itself is calling for restoration, from within and without, for a realignment of a sacred harmony and an awareness of a new balance between ourselves and the earth, and with all of life upon it. GROUND^ED is an exhibition of creative expressions nurturing that sacred connection, leading to a new "groundedness," that results in more intentional and responsible living.

There is no question that our world is facing an environmental emergency. Foundational to any solution is the critical need to have a healthier relationship with everything on our planet. Bold, courageous and innovative steps are required for our future. In this regard, we have much to learn about our relationship with the earth from indigenous cultures, such as our Native American sisters and brothers, who teach us that environmental care is an integral part of maintaining a sacred balance, and climate change indicates an imbalance that they understand as affecting everyone and everything – geological, physical, emotional and spiritual.

GROUND^ED will bring together an inspiring group of premier Northern Plains contemporary visual artists, including the Northern Arapaho and Eastern Shoshone tribes, whose artistic practice is a unique blend of their heritage and creative expression. Their work will serve as a visual representation of the worldview, wisdom and learnings of their forebears which is urgently needed today as we reimagine the way we live in order to heal our world.

Grounded in the interconnectedness of the sacred, the natural world, and one another, Native American traditional beliefs see everything on the earth as living in relationship. Their spiritual wisdom is therefore essential toward developing a "sacred harmony" between all peoples and with the earth. This unique contemporary art exhibition seeks to enable them to share their culture, heritage and sacred traditions to help us heal our world and foster wholeness among all peoples.

The Exhibition

GROUND^ED will be a touring contemporary art exhibition. It will also be offered simultaneously online through a virtual gallery.

Wyoming - It will first be showcased in heavily trafficked spaces in 3 cities of Wyoming (selected from Cheyenne, Casper, Sheridan, Cody and Worland).

United States - Following the Wyoming tour, the plan is for the exhibition to be showcased in 2-3 other key venues within the US.

United Kingdom and Middle East - Following the Wyoming and US exhibitions, the plan is for GROUNDED to be exhibited in the United Kingdom (i.e. Leicester, London) and the Middle East (UAE).

The Artists

15 premier contemporary artists have been invited to participate from Northern Plains tribes, with the majority coming from the Northern Arapaho and Eastern Shoshone tribes. Some noted emerging artists are among those selected for participation. The invitations were extended based on the artists' previous work and their ability to express the exhibition's theme through the lens of their heritage and cultural worldview.

Each artist will submit 1-2 original artworks (either two or three-dimensional) created in response to the theme of the exhibition in any still art medium: painting, drawing, collage, photography, digital art, mixed media and sculpture. They will measure no larger than 4-feet on the longest length for a two-dimensional work (painting, photograph, etc.) or 5-feet high for a sculptural piece (at the discretion of the artistic curator).
